JOIN US IN CELEBRATING THE
LOS ALAMOS LITTLE THEATRE'S
75TH ANNIVERSARY SEASON!

Our long history of presenting theatre in our community began in 1943 during the Manhattan Project, with a performance of a play called Right About Face. Subsequent productions during the War included Arsenic and Old Lace, featuring Dr. Robert Oppenheimer in a non-speaking role.

In 1973, we opened the current Performing Arts Center after extensive renovation of what had been the East Mess Hall. We've operated the building in an ongoing agreement with Los Alamos County ever since, producing more than 230 theatrical presentations on our stage and hosting other community groups.

This year's performance lineup includes something for everyone: a historical drama, a Neil Simon farce, a do-it-yourself mystery, a modern dramedy, and our sixth production of short plays featuring local playwrights.

We look forward to welcoming you in our audience, on our stage, or behind the scenes! Sign up for our mailing list on our website, LALT.ORG, or during your next visit.

Silent Sky

by Lauren Gunderson

This historical drama centers on the life of Henrietta Leavitt, who in the early 1900s made a profoundly important astronomical discovery even though, as a woman, she was not allowed to touch a telescope nor expected to offer a creative idea.

*Directed by John Cullinan
September 14-29, 2018*

Church & State

by Jason Odell Williams

This timely drama follows a U.S. Senator up for re-election who finds himself dealing with the fallout from a candid comment to a blogger. This play will also be LALT's entry to the New Mexico AACTFest State Festival, to be hosted at the Performing Arts Center.

*Directed by Patrick MacDonald
March 1-16, 2019*

Neil Simon's Rumors

This over-the-top farce is a non-stop romp of confusion, miscommunication and hilarity as an anniversary party goes awry when the host shoots himself, his wife goes missing, and the help is nowhere to be found.

*Directed by Patrick Webb
November 2-17, 2018*

8 X 10 SIX

LALT's sixth presentation of this format, this show features eight 10-minute plays, many written by local playwrights. An opportunity for new actors and directors to spread their wings, and for audiences to experience a delightful potpourri.

*Produced by John Gustafson
May 3-18, 2019*

Murder at the Lone Elm

An interactive murder mystery, this play tracks the characters and deaths at the Lone Elm Inn and asks the audience to get involved in solving who the murderer is.
